

Funerals: Consumers' Last Rights : The Consumers Union Report o... Today, 03:26 PM

UnivMenno's review: "[back cover] "It could be argued mature people ought to assume the responsibility for making plans for their own disposition, if only to spare their survivors some of the confusion and expense that so often follow death. [This book] is a guide for people who wish to do just that, as well as for survivors faced with an immediate need to make funeral arrangements. This book has two purposes. One is to help readers to become better informed about conventional funerals and burial (and how to arrange for them, at a saving, where possible), as well as less costly alternatives. The other purpose is to provide practical information about the choices and the decisions that most survivors must face only a few hours after death has occurred.""

Home: A Novel by Marilynne Robinson Jan 22, 02:22 PM

UnivMenno's review: "[from back cover] "Moving, compelling, and fascinating... 'Gilead' is full of passages that beg to be read aloud, complex thoughts and emotions expressed with a felicity as engaging as it is illuminating. Most of all, in this book, through the wide-open eyes of her aging hero, Robinson manages to convey the miracle of existence itself." Merle Rubin, Los Angeles Times Book Review"

UnivMenno's review: "[back cover] Acts of Faith is Eboo Patel's remarkable account of coming of age and coming to understand what led him toward religious pluralism rather than hatred. His story is a hopeful and moving testament to the power and passion of young people, and to the notion that we find the fulfillment of our identities in the work we do in the world."

UnivMenno's review: "[back cover] 'Authors Ron and Pat Potter-Efron have identified ten anger styles--the most common ways that people express or disguise anger, each with its own unique strengths and weaknesses. Through revealing self-tests and real-life examples, readers learn how to recognize their own style (or combination of styles) and what they can do if they feel stuck in that style. Their techniques are for anyone who wants to learn to express anger in healthy and productive ways.'"

UnivMenno's review: "[back cover] It's 1544, Menno Simons, a leader in the new--and persecuted--free church movement, is on the run from authorities in the Netherlands. With a price on his head, he stops to catch his breath on a darkened farm. He prays, "Lord, what do I do now?" Myron Augsburger's historical novel recalls Menno's life--from Catholic priest to radical reformer to hunted fugitive."

Contemplative Prayer: Praying When the Well Runs Dry by Joann... Dec 1, '08, 03:05 PM

UnivMenno's review: "[back cover] In our love relationship with God, prayer is our communication and our conversation with the One who loves us and who desires us to love in return. Prayer is so much more than making requests. It is a sharing of our spirit with the Eternal Spirit who has created us. In this relationship, as in any relationship, the partners share their deepest feelings and their most precious secrets. God desires to hear our deepest feelings and thoughts, and will share deep feelings and thoughts with us."

Three Cups of Tea: One Man's Mission to Promote Peace . . . One... Oct 9, '08, 11:28 AM

UnivMenno's review: "[back cover] Here in Pakistan and Afghanistan, we drink three cups of tea to do business; the first you are a stranger, the second you become a friend, and the third, you join our family, and for our family we are prepared to do anything--even die." Haji Ali, Village Chief, Karakoram Mountains, Pakistan. In 1992 a mountaineer named Greg Mortenson drifted into an impoverished Pakistan village in the Korakoram mountains after a failed attempt to climb K2. Moved by the inhabitants' kindness, he promised to return and build a school.

"Three Cups of Tea" is the story of that promise and its extraordinary outcome. Over the next decade Mortenson built not just one but fifty-five schools--especially for girls--in the forbidding terrain that gave birth to the Taliban. His story is at once a riveting adventure and a testament to the power of the humanitarian spirit."

The Faith Club: A Muslim, A Christian, A Jew-- Three Women Sea... Oct 9, '08, 11:24 AM

UnivMenno's review: "[back cover] A groundbreaking book about Americans searching for faith and mutual respect, 'The Faith Club' weaves the story of three women, their three religions, and their urgent quest to understand one another. After September 11, 2001, Ranya Idilby, an American Muslim of Palestinian descent, faced constant questions about Islam, God, and death from her children, the only Muslims in their classrooms. Inspired by a story about Muhammad, Ranya reached out to two other mothers to write an interfaith children's book that would highlight the connections between Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. After just a few meetings, however, the women realized that they themselves needed an honest and open environment where they could admit--and discuss--their concerns, stereotypes, and misunderstandings. After hours of soul-searching about the issues that divided them, Ranya, Suzanne, and Priscilla grew close enough to discover and explore what united them.""

For One More Day by Mitch Albom Oct 9, '08, 11:21 AM

UnivMenno's review: "[back cover] "If you had the chance, just one chance, to go back and fix what you did in life, would you take it? And if you did, would you be big enough to stand it? Mitch Albom, in this new book, once again demonstrates why he is one of my favorite writers: a fearless explorer of the wishful and magical, he is also a devout believer in the power of love. 'For One More Day' will make you smile. It will make you wistful. It will make you blink back tears of nostalgia. But most of all, it will make you believe in the eternal power of a mother's love."
